The Australian/New Zealand Standard – Rural and Urban Addressing (AS/NZS 4819:2011) is adopted by Council as the broad guidelines for the implementation of the rural addressing system.

A rural address site is assigned a rural address number, providing the property has a defined property access point and infrastructure on the property, such as a house, stock yards, shed etc. The allocated rural address number is determined in a logical sequence based on the distance of the main site entrance (access point) from a clearly defined datum point.

When there is a requirement to provide rural addressing, the Rural Addressing Procedure is followed.
